Senate set to probe 'Alabang 3'

By Terra Quinsada

THE PHILIPPINE DRUG ENFORCEMENT AGENCY (PDEA) is prepared to present before the Senate proof of bribe offers for the release of three rich young men held for drug peddling, the agency chief told the lawmakers yesterday.

"We will just tell them what transpired, show them text messages we received about the bribes... texts to officers who got dinner offers," PDEA Director General Domingo Standaig said when reached by phone yesterday.

The director has expressed interest in investigating the alleged P50-million bribe for the justice department's dismissal of charges against the so-called "Alabang boys"—Richard Santos Brando, Jorge Jordani Joseph and Joseph Ramon Torres.

WHO AM I? WHERE DID I COME FROM?

People plagued by these questions can find the answers at the Family Search archives of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day

The records, which are free and open to the public, have helped couples searching to trace their birth parents, people looking for blood kin for

It has helped people to leave and understand their roots, according to the Family Search archivists.

Knowing that one's ancestor was a hero could be a source of inspiration, they

Israel rules out temporary ceasefire

JERUSALEM—ISRAEL RULED out a temporary truce in Gaza on Wednesday, saying it would only end a permanent ceasefire as jets pounded Hamas targets for a fifth day and the militants launched Israel with rockets.

Protests swelled around the globe and the world's top diplomats scrambled to find a way to stop one of Israel's deadliest-ever offensives on Gaza that has so far killed at least 290 Palestinians.

As the Israeli security Cabinet convened in Tel Aviv to consider international proposals of a truce, a senior government official told AFP the Jewish state would not agree to a French offer of a 48-hour truce.

GMA's wish for New Year: Stability

'Have more compassion, share blessings'

By Dave Pascual

IF ALL PHILIPINOS, WHETHER RICH OR poor, would only practice the kapayapaan spirit, the nation would be better able to cope with the global economic crisis, said Manila Archbishop Theodore Gabriel Rosales.

In his New Year's message, Rosales called for greater compassion and sharing among Filipinos to the country beyond the most efforts of the economic crisis.

"There is the possibility that any, that the world's richest financial and economic crisis may affect the country by next year. Please God it may not happen," the Cardinal said.

"If it does, there is no emergency in action, more than economic justice will be needed to ensure peace. Compassion and the spirit of sharing, of which the Philippines is noted for its rich, will make life not bearable for both the poor and the rich," he said.

He said when Filipinos trade, the generosity, integrity and the kapayapaan spirit will ensure that the economy would not be in crisis.

Liguganigan (Liguganigan) Center Group, in his own message, urged the citizens of the Holy Family—Ara, Mary and Joseph—to help Filipinos in having the crisis.

"As the Holy Family was able to survive despite its poverty...we can learn to keep in mind the way saying, 'God helps those who help themselves,'"

He urged Filipinos to practice kapayapaan and pagmamano.

"This is a very tough time that we have to endure a very long time in the economic crisis. There must be something productive we can do and should do even in our little backyards like planting vegetables, raising fish and the like."

Furthermore, we do not spend what is not necessary," he said.

Rosales said citizens can start with the "disciplined and prudent" use of the budget and prioritize shopping to well-meaning the New Year.

He said Rosales should also show down expenses for the New Year celebrations by "making do with what we have."

AFTER SURVIVING A TUMULTUOUS 2008, PRESIDENT Macapagal-Arroyo said her wish for the New Year was for more stability as the countdown to her remaining 18 months in office begins today.

Not to cushion the blow of the world-wide economic crisis, she is prepared to survive tough times, and will be "happy judge her" according to Cabinet officials.

"The year was tumultuous for the world due to the global economic recession that, doubtless, has not been a year for the Philippines," Ms. Arroyo said in a brief New Year's message.

She said she was wishing for "peace, progress and prosperity for the people of the nation."

2008 had been a rocky year for the Arroyo government facing a fresh impeachment challenge, deep economic challenges and the administration's decision to close the House of Representatives, protests over climate change and a flurry of scandals.

But her second all-time low administration ended back in 2008 as a "well-lived year," according to Secretary Eduardo Ermita.

Ermita said, "While there have been some years, some challenges and some setbacks, we have given the Filipino people's capacity to face challenges."

Secretary General Claudio Evangelista said the administration viewed the economic crisis as "a test" in a new message to the nation.

Ermita said, "The experience of 2008, whether in pain or in triumph, has given the administration greater wisdom, discipline and fortitude to face the challenges ahead with hope and optimism."

Some observers noted that Ms. Arroyo would finish her term until June 30, 2010, but would become a lame-duck President this year when the 2010 campaign for the presidency begins.

Political analyst Moa Capable diagnosed, "This will become a lame-duck if climate change, deep economic crisis, and the 2010 campaign for the presidency begins."
